TWENTY EIGHTH CONGRESS.

FIRST SESSION.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1844. SENATE.

FEES OF THE SUPREME COURT. Mr. HENDERSON presented resolutions of the Legislature of Mississippi, in favor of a reduction of the fees of the U.S. District Court of Mr. kING said the whole country labored under the same grievance as was complained of in the State of Mississippi; years ago. Alabama had taken the same ground on this subject. He hoped the Committee on the Judiciary would take the matter into serious consideration.

Mr. BERRIEN said if the Senator from Miss.

issippi wished this attended to in behalf of Mississippi, wished this attended to in behalf of Mississippi, he could bring in a bill for this purpose. The fees in the United States courts were regulated by the act of 1789, in such wise as to be in conformity with the rates of fees existing in the several States.

Mr. HENDERSON said that a bill which should make these fees conform at all times with those established by the State, would be satis-

LEGISLATIVE INSTRUCTIONS.

Mr. DAYTON presented resolutions of the Legislature of New Jersey, instructing their Sen-ators to vote for refunding Jackson's fine. He was most happy to receive instructions from any quarter, especially from so high a source as that from which these eminated. If this bill could be so moulded as to meet his views, which could only be determined after deliberation, he should most cheerfully comply with the wishes of the Legislature; but he did not wish to be misunderstood—he utterly denied the binding validity of these resolutions. This Chamber was no auof these resolutions. This Chamber was no au-tomaton chess-board, nor were we picces for others to play a game with. He held his place here under no limitations save those imposed by the Constitution, and subject to no authority but the will of the people—he acknowledged no go-between. When he took his seat here, the na-tion at large was entitled to his serv.ces. It seemed to him that the very men who pretended to give their adhesion to this principle had, by their own conduct, done away with the en-tire effect of their opinions. If they were really nothing but the agents of the States, why did they exercise the privilege of resigning or obeying—if called upon to do no criminal act, but merely to vote thus or so in a mere matter of expediency, it was their duty, under this doc-trine, to remain and obey. The position he now held in this matter was no new one. In 1838 he had the honor to be a member of the Legislature of New Jersey, which Legislature, years before, had been liberal of its instructions to Mr Frelinghuvion and Mr. Southard, and freely denounced their disobedience. In 1838 parties changed—both branches of the Legislature were opposed to Gen. Wall, then holding a seat here. There was a proposition to instruct that gentleman, but he (Mr. Dayton) had opposed it, and instead of instructions, the sentiments only of the Legislature were conveyed to Gen. Wall, who disobeved this intimation of Legislative will, on the ground that it was not an instruction. Now it seemed to him that, if this doctrine was correct, and we were merely agents, and the States the principals, it was his duty to have obeyed. inasmuch as the servant knew the will of his master. Mr. D. then read from Gen. Wall's reply, the substance of which was, that his friend would not instruct him, and his enemies should not, because they denied the right of instruction.

INSANE ASYLUM. This bill was called up by Mr. MILLER.

Mr. ALLEN opposed it strenuously, and Messrs. MILLER and MERRICK defended it with much warmth. It was passed to a third reading by the following vote: Yeas, Messrs. Archer, Barrow, Bates, Bayard, Berrien, Choate, Clayton, Dayton, Evans, Foster, Fulton, Jarnaght, King, Mangum, Merrick, Miller, Morehead, Pearce, Phalps Parter Rives Savies Since Pearce, Phelps, Porter, Rives, Sevier, Simmons, Sturgeon, Tallmadge, Upham, Walker, Woodbridge, and Woodbury—29. Nays, Allen, Atchison, Atherton, Bagby, Benton, Breese, Colquitt, Fairfield, Hannegan, Haywood, Huger, Tappan, and Wright-13. The Senate then went into Executive session, and after some time spent therein, adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. HAMLIN, of Me., endeavored to present a petition which had some bearing upon the re-port under consideration, but

Mr. DROMGOOLE and others objected. Mr. H. called for a division on the question, but no quorum voted.

THE FOUR STATES.

Mr. THOMPSON, of Miss., continued the debate on this subject. He would not occupy a seat here, he said, if he did not believe that be was elected to it in conformity with the laws of the land. He denied the power to Congress to district the States. The people were the source of all power, and in their own States, in their own way, could define the time, place, and manner of electing their representatives. If the power claimed for Congress were to be exercised, it would excite the alarm of the people. If Congress could declare for a district system, it could also define the districts, and, with a corrupt majority and a compliant President, might accom-plish almost any amount of evil. He warned members to pause before deciding upon this ques tion, as the decision might involve a dismemberment of the Union.

Mr. STEPHENS, of Ga., next took the floor, and made a speech which was received with marked attention.

He replied to the gentleman who preceded him, and argued that Congress had the right to district the States. This was the plain interpretation of the Constitution, and the opinion of its wisest commentators. He had been asked how he, entertaining the opinions he did, could consent to hold a seat from one of the States that had not complied with the law of Congress. His answer was, that in a question of so much magnitude it belonged to Congress to decide upon the validity of its law. His judgment was submitted to this House, who were bound to decide upon the returns of members. His own party had consented to run a general ticket, that they might have some represen-tation on this floer, and in order that Congress might be compelled to decide on this subject. This, he thought, was the understanding of the people of Georgia.

Mr. S. then took up the majority report, and pointed out wherein it was inconsistent with

Mr. DOUGLASS (understood to be the author of the report) attempted to make some ex-

Mr. STEPHENS said that he should rely upon the report itself, and went on with quotations from it to prove what he had affirmed. He adduced the authority of Madison, Sherman, and Gilman, to show that the opinion of the first Congress which assembled was, that it had this power of districting the States.

Mr. S. closed with an eloquent appeal to members to rally around the Constitution, and pre-serve the checks and balances which sustain-

Mr. A. V. BROWN, of Tenn., spoke next, and attempted to put the paternity of the law in question upon a Whig, (Mr. Halsted, of N. J.,) but it was claimed by a Democrat, (Mr. Campbell, of

Mr. B. was not satisfied with this portion the question, and wished to insist that Mr. Halsted originated the bill which was afterwards anended by the gentleman from S. C., who deserted his party, and was made a leader by their enemies. Mr. B. then went on to denounce the law with great bitterness.

Mr. CHILTON, of Va., next addressed the House, and made a clear, logical argument in support of the constitutional power of Congress in the premises.

He was astonished, in examining the report, to find no expression of opinion upon this point, considering the ability of the gentleman who drafted it. He asked, with much emphasis, if the language of the Constitution, giving to Congress the power to make and alter regulations with regard to the elections of its members, was to be denied its proper meaning, in the plain and ordinary acceptation of language, where die the power reside? Certainly it was not with the States; none of them having adopted in their Constitutions any provisions on this point not derived from the Constitution.

Mr. PAYNE, of Ala., spoke next in defence of the general ticket system.

After he had finished, an effort for adjournment was made, but without success.

Mr. HUNT, of N. Y., next addressed the House, and we left him speaking.

FROM CANADA.

From the Montreal Gazette, Feb. 1.

It is understood that despatches were received at Kingston, on the 24th ult., conveying her Majesty's approval of all the measures of his Excellency the Governor General, and an assurance that in the pursuance of the same policy he may rely on the cordial support of the Ministers of the Crown.

The attempt made by Mr. Buchanan, to arrange the difficulties between the Cork and Connaught men on the Welland canal, has proved a failure. A great number of the Connaught men met him according to izvitation, but the Cork men absented themselves. Those present were addressed by the Warden of the District, and Priest M'Donaugh. An effort is now making to induce them to give up their arms.

It is calculated that there are 5,000 men and as many women and children on the line of the canal, and that by no possibility can employment be found for more than 3,000.

The latest intelligence we have states that a number of Scotch stonecutters, who were at work in quarries, have been almost beaten to death. and have been warned to give up work, or to procure their coffins; and threatening notices, conched in the most diabolical language, are put to whom we have consigned a large assortment, suited to every age and condition of the eye.

The Perifocal Glasses can be used for the greatest length of time, either by day or night, with perfect ease, (when selected to suit the state of the eye,) and never cause that giddiness of the head, or unpleasant sensation to the eyes, that many experience from using the common kind, but tend to strengthen and improve the sight; as will be seen by the numerous testimonials from those who have used them, which can be examined by calling as above. We ask particular attention to the following certificate:

PHILADELPHIA, March 1, 1843. PHILADELPHIA, March 1, 1843.

I have recommended the Perifocal Spectacles to several patients, and have received from most of them warm encomiums upon the article. They assert that these Glasses do not fatigue the eyes by long use, as is apt to be the case with the double convex Spectacles, while the command of the eyes over the objects of vision is much greater. This corresponds with the coming any outleign would form from his with the opinion any optician would form from his knowledge of the principles upon which those Glasses are adjusted—so as to converge the rays coming from different quarters to the same focal distance. The eyes can be turned to a considerable extent, therefore, under these Glasses, without involving the necessity of moving the head.
